What this program IS

This is an introductory and developmental program designed to teach foundational elements of training. It is a great opportunity for young athletes to start training at AQUINAS and become familiar with sports training.

The program is designed by Coach Eddie Hodges, a certified strength & conditioning coach who is employed by Aquinas, and will be implemented by Coach Lee, the head football coach at Aquinas who has over 20 years of supervising and coordinating summer and in-season training programs at Aquinas.

The program is set up to be fun and engaging

while being geared toward skill development

FAQs

What are the benefits of strength training for kids this age?

Research shows that a well-designed program can:

- Improve overall fitness
- Burn calories to increase lean body mass (burn fat)
- Help build strong muscles
- Make bones stronger
- Improve mental health
- Create a foundation for future training
- Improve sport performance

Should girls participate in this program?

ABSOLUTELY! This program is designed for all young athletes. Girls benefit tremendously from strength training.

What will a typical session look like?

There will usually be a warm-up activity or game, followed by a dynamic movement progression to get the body prepared for training. We will also incorporate running, jumping, throwing med balls, lifting free weights, body weight drills and band exercises on a regular basis.
